Oil-smuggler gives police the slip

SONGKHLA: A pickup truck suspected of being used to smuggle oil into Thailand escaped the clutches of police in Sadao district yesterday after it was stopped at a security checkpoint.

The vehicle was pulled over near a checkpoint on Kanchanawarit Road in the district's Khlong Ngae municipality. However, when officers approached the truck the driver sped off, police said.

Police chased the truck and tried to stop it by firing shots at its wheels but the driver managed to evade them.
